Stem Cell

What is a Stem Cell

Stem cells are cells that are responsible for creating new cells. Stem cells are the factories for any cells in living beings. They can be of different types, such as eye cells, skin cells, hair cells, and kidney cells, among others.

Stem Cell Therapy-IV

Stem cell therapy is a non-invasive treatment that aims to replace damaged cells within the body. Mesenchymal stem cell therapy can be deployed systemically via IV or injected locally to target specific sites, depending on the patient's needs.

Stem Cell for Face

Stem cell facial treatment is a non-surgical facial rejuvenation procedure. This treatment harnesses stem cell technology to create more collagen and fill in your tissues with healthy blood flow, resulting in a glowing and youthful appearance.

Benefits of Stem Cell Therapy

- Rejuvenates the skin
- Rejuvenates internal organs
- Slows the process of cell aging
- Improves hormone function
- Inhibits menopause and andropause
- Improves brain function, concentration.
- Restores cell function and work performance
- Repairs neurological damage

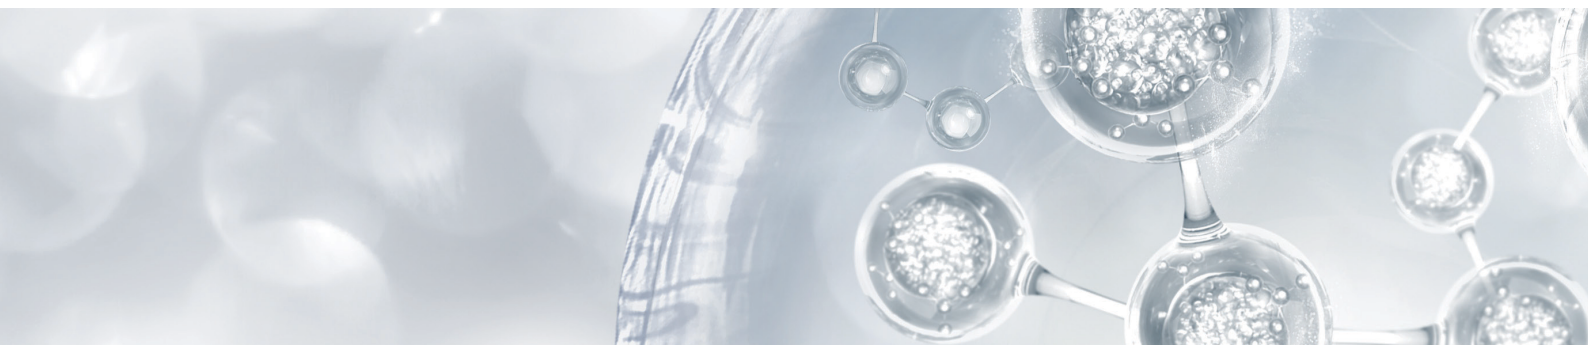

Who is a good? : Stem Cell Therapy

If you suffer from chronic pain, you will likely be a good candidate for stem cell therapy. However, it is not just for those suffering from chronic pain. This type of therapy can be used for those with various kinds of conditions. Those suffering from osteoarthritis also make good candidates for stem.

Youthful Rejuvenation

Umbilical Cord-Mesenchymal Stem Cells (UC-MSCS) According to several studies, Umbilical Cord – Mesenchymal Stem Cells can

- Produce anti-inflammatory agents
- Regenerate cells and decrease the ratio of dead cells
- Regulate the immune system for several symptoms, including allergies, SLE, gout, rheumatoid arthritis, and diabetes
- Slow down the aging process, remove fine lines and wrinkles, shrink pores, neutralize redness, and help retain the skin's moisture
- Restore strength, alleviate muscle pain, relieve osteoarthritis, and empower the lives of elderly people
- Be used safely when compared with cells from animals or other organisms

How long do they last?

The actual duration of improvement will vary for each individual as all patients age differently. After treatment, patients may continue to see improvement for up to 6 months due to the strength of their regenerative properties. For some, the results may last for years.

Is stem cell therapy safe?

Prior to a scheduled cesarean section, consenting mothers are screened and evaluated. Within thirty days of the scheduled delivery, the mother is serologically tested according to the standards of the FDA and the American Association of Tissue Banks to rule out any transmissible diseases or other contradictions.

Once these reports are reviewed by the Medical Director or designee, further filtration processes occur, and the final product is analyzed for its growth factor and cytokine content. The products obtained are immunologically privileged, meaning the body will not reject them, and adverse reactions are extremely rare.

Preparation

- Stop taking steroid medication.
- Discontinue NSAIDs at least 7 days before the procedure.
- Drink plenty of water.
- Ensure you get enough rest.

Stem Cell Aftercare

- You may experience slight redness and edema one hour after treatment, which is normal and temporary.
- Avoid scratching your skin as it will be very sensitive.
- After the injection, use cold compresses to reduce swelling from the injections.
- Avoid alcohol, as it can overwork your liver and reduce stem cell function.
- Remember to drink more water.

Contraindications for Stem Cell Treatment

- Pregnancy or breastfeeding women.
- People with any skin infections, blood infections, or infections in the targeted area.
- Individuals with hemorrhagic tendencies.
- Individuals taking anticoagulants or medications that prevent blood clotting.
